Aliyah Wenneker’s Short Bio:

Aliyah Wenneker is classical harpist, church pianist, and pedagogue who resides in Middle Tennessee and the greater Nashville area, with performance experience spanning solo recitals, weddings, orchestral concerts, liturgical services, private events, and collaborative projects. A scholarship recipient at Belmont University, Aliyah is completing her undergraduate degree in Classical Harp Performance under the instruction of Dr. Sarah Crocker. She has served as co-principal harpist of the Belmont Symphony Orchestra and Belmont Wind Ensemble since 2023. Aliyah’s orchestral experience includes the distinction of performing alongside world-renowned tenor Andrea Bocelli on multiple occasions, including Belmont University’s “Hope Transforms” campaign in 2025 and Bocelli’s 30th Anniversary World Tour in 2026 at Legacy Arena in Birmingham, Alabama, and Bridgestone Arena in Nashville, Tennessee. Beyond the stage, Aliyah is an active educator and collaborative musician, teaching harp to two eager young ladies, serving as a church pianist whenever there is a need, and working as a session harpist for composers, filmmakers, and student producers throughout the Nashville music community. Following graduation, Aliyah plans to pursue a Master of Music in Harp Pedagogy before establishing a harp and piano academy in Middle Tennessee, where she hopes to inspire the next generation of musicians while continuing to bring the elegance and beauty of the harp to audiences throughout the South.